Data control: Hughes' employees will input data online

Half-way house for Hughes Electrical

A semi-hosted solution will replace Hughes Electrical's in-house software system, after the company decided to outsource elements of its payroll following the departure of a key member of staff.

The company will continue to use TeamSpirit software, but will transfer the running of the payroll and management of tax and legislative administration to HeadCount, also part of the TeamSpirit Holdings Group.

Although the system will be hosted on HeadCount servers the data will be inputted by Hughes employees. This will be done online through an encrypted Virtual Private network.

The £80,000, three-year deal will free Hughes of the need to provide IT support for the software.

"As changes are happening in our internal payroll team, switching part of our payroll to TeamSpirit's outsourced services arm, HeadCount, creates additional flexibility, efficiency and brings clear risk management advantages," explained Nick Heffer, personnel director for Hughes.
